THE CRAFT

Precision cut. Platinum set. Lab-grown.

The princess cut was invented to extract maximum brilliance from a square stone — 76 facets engineered to redirect light upward through the table. Each tanzanite stone in this pair is cut to exacting symmetry, then hand-set into a four-prong platinum basket, lifting the stone for unobstructed light flow from every angle.

Platinum is the rarest and most durable precious metal used in jewelry — 30 times rarer than gold. It never yellows, never needs rhodium plating, and develops a rich patina over decades of wear. It is also the most hypoallergenic setting choice, making these studs ideal for daily wear even by sensitive ears.

These lab-grown tanzanites carry the same VI trichroism — shifting between deep blue, vivid violet, and burgundy — as their mined counterparts, with zero mining footprint. Available from 0.5 to 10 total carats, in screw back or push back, from $439 at 50% off.

WHY TANZANITE 2026

The gem collectors are watching.

1× Found in One Place on Earth

A single 4km² deposit near Merelani, Tanzania. When it's gone, it's gone — making lab-grown the [illegible] forward.

76

Princess Cut Facets

Every princess cut tanzanite features 76 precisely angled facets, engineered to project maximum brilliance through the flat table face.

3×

Trichroic Color Axes

Tanzanite is one of very few gems that shifts across three distinct colors — blue, violet, burgundy — depending on the angle of light.

0%

Mining Impact

Lab-grown tanzanite has identical chemistry and optics to mined stones — without the ecological or ethical cost of extraction.
